Packard Agrees To Make British Airplane Motors

Agreement Is Subject to O. K. of Corporation Directors in Detroit, Says Knudsen Contracts Given
Navy Awards Orders for Aircraft Carriers and Cruisers

Washington, July 3 (AP)—The National Defense Commission announced today that the Packard Motor Company had agreed tentatively to undertake a contract for 9,000 aircraft engines—3,000 for the United States and 6,000 for Great Britain.

William S. Knudsen, in charge of defense production, said the agreement was subject to approval of the Packard directors. Henry Ford refused the order, saying he would work only for the United States.

Meanwhile, a supplementary defense program which may run into additional billions of dollars was talked over at a conference between President Roosevelt and key men in the defense setup.

White House officials were unable to suggest what amount the program might reach or in what manner or when it would be submitted to Congress.

Navy Contracts Awarded
The navy awarded contracts today for construction of three aircraft carriers and two cruisers, costing $169,530,000 to the Newport News, Va., Shipbuilding and Drydock Company.

The aircraft carriers are to cost $43,662,000 each and the cruisers $19,272,500 each.

They are the last of the 92 combatant ships for which Congress thus far has provided funds.

In the last three weeks the navy noted, work has been ordered started on two battleships, four aircraft carriers, 15 cruisers, 38 destroyers, 28 submarines, and five auxiliaries.

Altogether 499,435 tons were involved, costing $1,140,000,000.

Even before today's contracts, a recapitulation showed that the army and navy have put their pens to more than $1,000,000,000 worth of defense contracts during the last month.

Huge Contracts Signed
The contracts—covering items from beans to bombers, solder to submarines—represent, for the most part, the first big block of expenditure commitments in the $4,500,000,000 cash program voted by Congress for the fiscal year which began July 1.

Reports of this progress came as the Senate naval committee scheduled consideration of the unprecedented $4,000,000,000 navy expansion bill which would authorize a 70 per cent jump in fleet strength. The House already has approved the measure.

Approves Legislation
The Senate naval committee gave quick approval to legislation authorizing construction of a $15,000,000 dry dock in New York harbor, capable of handling the biggest American warships and liners.

In compiling the billion dollar war record, the navy led the way with orders for 87 vessels at a cost of $910,279,000. The sum represents hull construction and machinery only. At least $25,000,000 more will be required to complete equipment of the ships.

The awarding of the navy contracts put under way all the 11 per cent fleet expansion voted earlier this month, with the exception of two cruisers and three aircraft carriers.

Although a large part of the contracts represent funds committed in the $4,500,000,000 appropriations for the fiscal year, some—notably those for final equipment of warships—were made under authorizations for which money will be voted during the next several years.

The funds for the 1941 fiscal year program did not actually become available until July 1, but army and navy anticipated the fact.

Without waiting for cash in hand, the war department on June 24 placed orders for $41,584,986 worth of critical supplies needed by the rapidly growing army.

The biggest order was $27,234,000 for uniform material to prevent a threatened shortage in clothing. Also included were $5,750,000 for scout cars, $4,571,867 for anti-aircraft fire control instruments, and many lesser items.

WhiteBook Tells Plans Of French

German News Agency Makes Allegations Against French High Command
Tells Intrigue
Book Charges Intrigue Bad Enough to Amaze World

Berlin, July 3 (AP)—DNE, official German news agency, published copies today of alleged Allied documents found in France which it said revealed "intrigue such as the world never yet has seen" for creating new battlefronts in the European war.

These documents, DNE declared, showed Allied plans for bombing important oil fields in the Russian Caucasus and the ports of Baku and Batum as well as creating battlefronts in Scandinavia and the Balkans.

They were made public in anticipation of the issuance of the sixth white book of the war by the German foreign office.

The first document disclosed was an alleged telegram from Generalissimo Maximilian Weyand, then commander of the Allied Near East Army, to General Gustav Gamelin, then commander-in-chief in France.

Dated March 7, 1940, it said Air Marshall Mitchell, commander of the air force for the middle east, arrived at Beirut, Lebanon, that day and informed him he had received word from London, "in regard to preparations for possible bombardment of Baku and Batum."

Weyand, according to the telegram, said Mitchell was seeking permission to investigate immediate landing fields for planes which would have their main base in Al Jazira in the Levant states. Weyand said the investigation was carried out by British and French officers dressed in civilian clothes.

This would give the impression that the visit concerned work affecting exploitation of oil fields in this region, Weyand said, according to the DNE account.

Quotes Telegram
Another document was a telegram of March 14, purportedly from the French Ambassador Massigli in Ankara, Turkey, to the French foreign office and labeled "strictly secret," regarding a conversation with the Turkish foreign minister.

DNE quoted:

"In the course of a visit which I made yesterday, the foreign minister laid before me on his own initiative a telegram which arrived during the night in which the Turkish representative in Moscow reported a conversation with the ambassador of the United States."

"According to the view of the latter, the Russians are so anxious about the danger of fire and bombardment in the oil region of Baku that the Soviet Russian management has asked American engineers whether and how fire caused by bombardment could be fought with success."

"The engineers are supposed to have answered that, as a result of the manner in which the oil fields have been exploited, the earth there is so saturated with oil that fire would spread immediately to the entire neighboring region; it would be months before it could be extinguished and years before work could be resumed again."

Document number two, as cited by DNE, was entitled a plan by Gamelin for participation by French-British force in operations in Finland. The document indicated material support of the Finns had been agreed upon by the Allies and the first shipments made December 20, 1939.

The French high command studied the question as to what extent French forces could be employed for this purpose. Com-

Townsend Convention at St. Louis Becomes Third Party Test Ground

St. Louis, July 3 (AP)—Townsend pension delegates turned back today to matters of internal organization after acting as a sounding board for third party threats apparently directed at the Democratic National Convention in Chicago July 15.

The third party talk yesterday by Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont.), John L. Lewis of the CIO and Dr. Francis E. Townsend, founder of a pension movement—carried an "if" more or less directed at the Democratic conclave.

Wheeler, who announced that his name would be presented to the Democratic Convention, whether or not President Roosevelt seeks a third term, told the Townsendites:

"Unless the Democrats adopt a liberal, progressive platform and pledge their candidate to keep

British Turn Down Japanese Demand To Stop Shipments

Refusal of London Has Been Conveyed in Note Received by British Envoy

Tokyo, July 3 (AP)—Great Britain has refused the Japanese demand that the arms route through British Burma to the Chinese forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek be closed it was reliably reported tonight.

(Britain is considering "questions that would arise with the United States" if she acceded "in any way" to the Japanese demand, R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, announced in the House of Commons.)

The refusal of the London government was said to have been conveyed in a note just received by the British ambassador to Tokyo, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie. The reply still was to be delivered to the foreign office.

Sir Robert transmitted to London his views on the Japanese demand and has asked for further instructions.

This British-Japanese dispute is a factor in the tense Japanese political situation already marked by strong representations of army leaders to the cabinet over policy to be followed in the Far East in the light of allied defeats in Europe.

The military leaders are said to have expressed dissatisfaction with the stand taken by Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita, apparently holding that his plan for an "Asiatic sphere" dominated by Japan is not strong enough.

Arita enunciated last Saturday a foreign policy based on creation of an "Asiatic sphere" in which Japan would be dominant—an advance from the previous position of insistence on maintenance of the status quo in East Asia.

(It is likely, however, that Arita's pronouncements did not go far enough to satisfy the army leaders.)

Battalion Veteran Dies in Highland

Earl Miller, 49, Member of Famous Lost Battalion; Cited as Hero

Earl Miller, 49, a member of the famous Lost Battalion in the World War, died suddenly of a heart attack Tuesday evening in the office of Dr. Carl F. Meek in Highland, where he had gone for treatment.

Dr. Meek was out on a call when Mr. Miller reached the office, and it was while waiting for the doctor's return that Mr. Miller was fatally stricken.

Mr. Miller was born and had lived all his life in Highland. He was son of the late Samuel and Ella Smith Miller, and is survived by a brother, Walter Miller, of Highland, and a sister, Mrs. Martin Decker of New Paltz; one nephew and two nieces.

During the World War, Mr. Miller was a member of the 23rd Regiment. As a member of the Lost Battalion he was later awarded the citation of the Purple Heart.

Mr. Miller was a printer by trade and was employed by the Overlook Press during the several years it was located in Highland. Later he took charge of the small store conducted by the late S. J. Hendricks in Highland, and when the business was purchased by J. W. Schoonmaker, Mr. Miller continued in charge.

Fraternally he was a member of Lloyd Post of the American Legion; Sunshine Lodge, I. O. O. F. of Highland; and Adonai Lodge of Masons of Highland.

Funeral services will be held in the Highland Methodist Church on Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with the Rev. F. A. McCormac, pastor of the church, officiating. The Masonic ritualistic service will be held in the church, and the American Legion service at the grave in the Highland cemetery.

Send Him Home

Kansas City, July 3 (AP)—An applicant for registration as a voter failed to include all the necessary information so a clerk telephoned his home to fill in the blanks. The applicant's wife, asked for the date of her husband's birth, retorted: "If he can't remember when he was born, send him home right now!"

German Bombers Land in Rumania

A fleet of German bombing planes which Bucharest military circles said Rumania purchased from the Nazis, landed at Brasov (1) in the Transylvania province of Rumania in the midst of full-fledged war preparations by neighboring Hungary. Bulgarian and Hungarian attacks were reported at unnamed points but Hungary accused the Rumanians of violating the border at Visk (2). Russian tanks fired on Rumanians at Herta (3) as refugees from Bessarabia filled Jassy (4). Russia dominated the Danube Delta (5).

Council Approves $24,678.62 Bond Issue for B. P. W.

Democrats Vote Solidly Against Proposal and One Flays 'Scare' of Higher Prices

With the nine Republican aldermen Tuesday evening voting in favor of a bond issue for $24,678.62 for the purpose of purchasing new equipment for the Board of Public Works, the bond ordinance was adopted by the necessary two-thirds majority vote. The four Democratic aldermen voted against the adoption of the ordinance.

The authorization of a bond issue had been asked by Mayor C. J. Heiselman in a communication addressed to the council in which the mayor outlined the reasons for the step taken and also the type of machinery it was desired to purchase. The communication will be found elsewhere.

A two-thirds majority vote in the Common Council requires nine votes, and with the Republican aldermen voting in a solid bloc in favor of the ordinance it was adopted after Alderman Walter Donnaruma of the Sixth ward spoke against its adoption.

The four Democratic aldermen who voted against the adoption of the ordinance were Houghtaling of the Fourth ward, Donnaruma, Wolff of the Seventh ward, and Jordan of the 13th ward.

Had Reconsidered
Alderman Donnaruma when the bond ordinance was introduced said that in voting "no" on the proposition he desired to explain his reasons. He said that since the meeting Monday night with Mayor Heiselman he had reconsidered further the proposition. He said that Monday evening after hearing the mayor explain the proposition he was inclined favorably toward it.

He said that he felt that if the streets were to be placed in proper shape the appropriation for labor and materials should exceed the cost of machinery.

Alderman Donnaruma called attention to the recent heavy rainfall when the streets were flooded and said sewer system was not adequate to carry off the overflow of water that fell during the storm. In his own home, he said, there was four feet of water.

"I feel" said Alderman Donnaruma, "that in accordance with the powers vested in it, the common council of the city of Kingston is hereby empowered to investigate the functioning of the Kingston water board, as to its technical, physical and financial policies through a special committee to be appointed by the president of the common council and that such committee render a report back to the whole body of the common council."

Speaking on the resolution Alderman Donnaruma said he held in his hand a report from the state showing that the cost of water in Kingston was higher than in any other city in the state. He said that in 1938, according to the report, it cost Newburgh $114,000 for its water supply; Poughkeepsie the sum of $139,000, while in Kingston it cost $172,000. Alderman Donnaruma claimed that Poughkeepsie made a profit of $100,000 on its water system, while in Newburgh the profit was $45,000. "It is about time," he said, "that Kingston is hereby empowered to investigate the functioning of the Kingston water board, as to its technical, physical and financial policies through a special committee to be appointed by the president of the common council and that such committee render a report back to the whole body of the common council."

City School Tax Rate Is Fixed at $8.48

Kingston's school tax rate for this year was fixed at $8.48 per thousand, an increase of 32 cents over the 1939 rate, when the common council Tuesday evening unanimously adopted the budget that had been prepared by the board of education.

The budget was read at the monthly council meeting last evening, and was approved without comment by the aldermen.

Traffic Committee Gives No Report

Several Changes Adopted; Alderman Is Named in Place of John Locke

No report was submitted by the traffic control committee Tuesday evening at the common council meeting on the proposed ordinance making Wall and Fair streets, between North Front and Main streets, one-way traffic streets.

It is understood that if the ordinance had been offered at the council session it would have met defeat.

The traffic control committee, however, reported several proposed changes in the traffic regulations in an ordinance that was adopted. One of the changes provided for diagonal parking of cars on Ferry street.

Duane J. Forman of 119 South Manor avenue, who was appointed yesterday as alderman of the Second ward attended his first council session last evening. The appointment of Alderman Forman was made by Mayor C. J. Heiselman to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Alderman John F. Locke.

As the last matter of business at last night's council session a resolution offered by Alderman (Continued on Page 10)

Council Defeats Resolution Asking Investigation of City Water Department

Sixth Ward Alderman Walter Donnaruma, claiming that Kingston's water consumers were paying more for city water than the residents of other cities in the state, last evening introduced a resolution in the common council that a committee be appointed to investigate the water department.

The resolution was opposed by Alderman Paul Zucca, of the First ward, who said that "Kingston has the lowest, cost and best water in the state." The resolution was defeated by a vote of 9 to 4, the Republican members of the council voting solidly against it and the four Democratic members voting in favor of adoption.

The Donnaruma resolution read: "That, in accordance with the powers vested in it, the common council of the city of Kingston is hereby empowered to investigate the functioning of the Kingston water board, as to its technical, physical and financial policies through a special committee to be appointed by the president of the common council and that such committee render a report back to the whole body of the common council."

Turks Expect Nazi Drive Against Oil Territory of Iraq

Weakening of British and French Influence Is Cited; Iran Is Now Pro-Nazi

Istanbul, July 3 (AP)—Well-informed Turkish quarters asserted today they expected a German-inspired drive against the oil-rich state of Iraq, which has been virtually a British protectorate.

These quarters regard spread of the European war to the Near and Middle East as imminent.

Iraq, it was said, already has asked Turkey what help could be expected in event of possible aggression by Iran (Persia), which now, according to informed opinion here, is wholly pro-Nazi.

The Shah of Iran, Reza Khan Pahlavi, is feared here to have plans for carving a mid-eastern empire for himself by collaborating with the Germans in their long-range program for a "march to the east."

This German plan is said to have gained momentum with the collapse of France and the resulting weakening of British-French influence in this part of the world.

Iraq was reported fearing that the Persians will first claim the province of Kerbala, which they consider theirs since it is the center of Shiite (Persian) Mohammedanism, and then go for Mosul to cut off British oil supplies in the east.

Iraq, which was freed from the Turks in the World War and was under mandate to Great Britain until 1927, has only a small army and little chance of British support now.

Iraq lies just south of eastern Turkey, with Iran to the east of her.

Turks also feel that the European war soon will spread to Syria in view of France's apparent determination to hold it for (Continued on Page Three)

German Planes Raid Convoy Near Coast of Britain; Soldiers Are Attacked

Carol May Quit
King Carol Is Reported to Be on Verge of Abdicating

(By The Associated Press)

German U-boats and bombing planes attacked Britain with new fury today.

The Nazi high command said German planes attacked a convoy off the English Channel coast and sank 18,000 tons of British shipping. German submarines, the high command reported, torpedoed another 39,000 tons.

German sky raiders, displaying new boldness in a daylight sortie instead of their usual night-masked attacks, bombed the south coast of England today after an earlier assault that killed 12 and wounded 123.

One Nazi plane machine-gunned soldiers near the beach. Incendiary bombs also were dropped.

British R.A.F. fighters, shot down a Nazi bomber off the east coast.

An official air ministry communique issued shortly after noon said anti-aircraft guns were still in action.

With apparent easing of the Balkan crisis, permitting Hitler to divert attention from southeast Europe, Britons wondered if the intensified Nazi air raids signalled the opening of the long-awaited "battle for Britain."

Things were far from quiet however in southeast Europe.

Anti-Semitic Riots
Bloody anti-Semitic riots spread through Rumania, and King Carol II's hostile neighbor, Hungary, was mobilizing its army to the greatest peacetime strength.

Carol himself was reported on the verge of abdicating several days ago after sharp criticism over his surrender of Bessarabia and North Bucovina to Russia. He was said to have been dissuaded by his cabinet.

Hungarian army reinforcements streamed toward the border with Rumania but the latter based hopes for peace on Carol's bid for protection by the axis powers and the strength of her own hastily-manned armies.

Barbed wire and bayonets guarded the frontiers of southern Dobruja, wanted by Bulgaria, and Transylvania. Sporadic border skirmishing was reported.

Anti-Semitic rioting spread throughout Rumania after disorders last night in which scores were injured and many believed killed. Many wealthy Jews fled to the country and others remained inside their homes as police and troops failed to bring the disturbances under control.

To the west, Germany and Britain intensified their battle of bombings.

A twilight raid on England killed 12 and injured 23 last night.

Ruhr Valley Hit
British bombers struck hard at the Ruhr valley of northwestern Germany, raided night after night, and sent townsfolk in large industrial cities scurrying to cellars. The Germans counted 41 killed and 73 hurt in the Ruhr raids during the last month and said the attacks have been more severe the past few days.

The British air ministry claimed another blow Monday night at Germany's 26,000-ton war ship Scharnhorst, twice before reported damaged.

A German announcement in Amsterdam said General Henri Gerard Winkelman, commander-in-chief of the Netherlands armed forces who surrendered May 14, had been sent to Germany as a prisoner of war following German dissatisfaction over unidentified demobilization "disturbances."

It warned that "sharpest counter-measures" would be taken in the German-occupied country if there were further disturbances.

At Washington, President Roosevelt established close control over exports of vital war materials to avert any shortage that might interfere with American armament.

The Senate military committee approved yesterday the nomination of Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war after hearing him declare opposition to sending troops outside the United States. Action on Col. Frank Knox, nominated for secretary of the navy, was delayed.

Mayor's Letter Requests Funds

Welfare Department Asks $700, Police $1,210.08

Tuesday evening Mayor C. J. Heiselman forwarded to the common council communications and copies of resolutions adopted by the board of public welfare and the police board. The welfare department asked an appropriation of $700 to purchase a station wagon, and the police board asked an appropriation of $1,210.08 to be used in purchasing four new police radio cars.

The mayor's communications read as follows:

July 2, 1940
To The Honorable, The Common Council
City of Kingston, N. Y.

Gentlemen:
I attach hereto certified copy of a resolution adopted by the Board of Public Welfare, dated June 27, 1940, requesting your honorable body to appropriate the sum of $700.00 for the purpose of purchasing one 1940 Chevrolet special de luxe station wagon, with knee action, leather upholstery and full equipment, doors to be lettered in gold leaf. The present car, which is traded in, is a 1934 Chevrolet sedan, which is worn out. This car is used by the superintendent of the City Home and for the general work of the welfare department. The commissioners of public welfare believe that a station wagon would be more serviceable for the work to be done than a sedan.

For the reasons heretofore expressed to your honorable body, I recommend that you appropriate from the "Department of Public Welfare Receipts account" the sum of $700.00 to the Board of Public Welfare for the purpose of purchasing this station wagon. The account "Department of Public Welfare for the purpose to which is credited recoveries made by the department from the assets of recipients in various categories of relief."

Yours truly,
C. J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor

June 28, 1940
To the Honorable, The Common Council
City of Kingston, N. Y.

Gentlemen:
I attach hereto certified copy of a resolution adopted by the Board of Police Commissioners on June 20, 1940, requesting your honorable body to appropriate the sum of $1,210.08 for the purpose of purchasing four new police radio cars.

Our present radio cars were purchased in November, 1938, and have been driven approximately 45,000 miles.
For the reasons heretofore expressed to your honorable body, I recommend that you appropriate from the Dog Fund Reserve Account the sum of $1,210.08 to the Board of Police Commissioners for the purchase of four radio cars.

The proceeds of the city's share of dog license fees formerly went into the police pension fund, in accordance with provisions of the charter pertaining to the police pension system. Inasmuch as the police pension fund no longer exists, these fees have been segregated in a fund called "Dog Fund Reserve Account." The salary of the dog warden has been paid from this fund, in accordance with the provisions of the state law. The balance remaining in the fund as of this date is $1,846.31.

Yours truly,
C. J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor.

Mayor Proposes $24,678.62 to Buy B.P.W. Equipment

An appropriation of $24,678.62 for the purchase of new equipment for the board of public works was recommended in the following communication forwarded to the common council on Tuesday evening by Mayor C. J. Heiselman.

The mayor's communication, which follows, describes the type of equipment that was expected to be purchased:

June 29, 1940.
To the Honorable, The Common Council, City of Kingston, N. Y.

Gentlemen:
Attached hereto is a certified copy of a resolution of the board of public works, adopted June 27, 1940, requesting an appropriation of $24,678.62 with which to purchase certain machinery and equipment.

While it had not been intended to purchase these items during the current year, the board decided that it was advisable to do so because of the probability of increased prices or possibility of lack of supply which might be brought about next year by the huge armament program of the federal government.

The machinery and equipment required and requested by the resolution of the board of public works, and the purchase price of each, are as follows:

(1)—1 Austin-Western large street sweeper, $1,090.

This small patrol sweeper to be traded in for one large sweeper for reasons of economy. This will give the city two large street sweepers, which are needed to keep our streets clean.

(2)—1 International cab-over-engine 4-ton truck with 16 ft. dump body, $3,500.

A 1922 White truck, with platform body, which is worn out, to be traded in.

This truck is used for the collection of brush and other large sized rubbish. The old truck wasted a great deal of time because it had to be unloaded by hand at the dump and incinerator. The new truck, because it has an hydraulic dump body, will expedite the work and save money.

This truck will be equipped with a large modern snow plow for winter use.

2 Galion power graders, with full equipment and accessories, $9,250.

One old Warco grader traded in. These machines are larger and more powerful than the machine to be traded in. With Kingston's 100 miles of streets, many badly in need of scarifying, machines of this type are necessary to maintain and repair pavements without requiring large expenditures for costly materials.

These power graders will also be used for retreading pavements, a method whereby the paving material is prepared by mixing stone and asphalt with these machines right on the job. These two graders will be equipped with snow plows and will add two pieces of powerful snow and ice removal equipment to our snow fighting force.

(4)—1 Lorraine gasoline power shovel with digging and 40 ft. crane boom, $4,975.

One old, worn-out shovel traded in. At the present time we have only one good excavating shovel, which is excavating Clinton avenue. The shovel to be traded in was purchased several years ago second hand and it is now worn out. We are getting almost as much in trade-in value as our original purchase price. In 1934 the water department gave the board of public works an old power shovel which was then nearly worn out. We used it for some years and traded it in with a $500 allowance on another used shovel. We then bought it back for $300 and used it several years more. A month ago we sold it for $350.

This is the first time the city has ever purchased a new power shovel. Other power shovels were purchased second hand.

(5) 1 Mack 3-ton truck with cab, $1,649.50.

1 3-yard wood body, with 10-ton winch and accessories, $1,917.

1931 Dodge winch truck traded in. This truck and winch are needed to replace our present winch truck, a 1931 Dodge, which is worn out. We bought our present winch truck in 1938 for $450. Its first job was to put up the new steel street lighting poles on Broadway when it saved the city nearly $1,000 under the prepared estimate for hand work. It did noble work picking up trees, stumps, etc., during the hurricane emergency of 1938. It has been working every day since until several weeks ago when it played out.

The old truck has a public utility body and can be used only for lifting.

The new truck will be equipped with a dump body, as well as a winch, and can be used for hauling materials, leaves, snow, etc.

It is equipped with a modern snow plow and because of its weight will be an important addition to our snow fighting force.

(6) 1 Buffalo Springfield 8-ton gasoline roller with accessories, $3,490.

Our street operations are sometimes handicapped because of lack of sufficient rollers. Two of our rollers are old steam rollers, which have seen many years of service to the city, and are obsolete and costly to maintain and operate. The addition of this roller will speed up operations both in the department of public works and on the WPA.

In the street construction program and other public works in which the city engages, our citizens approve of the application of modern methods in the interest of efficiency and economy. Efficient work cannot be done without modern tools and equipment. I also call your attention to the fact that not only must we provide equipment for the ordinary work of the department of public works, where we must be ready to meet any emergency that may come to our community, but tools and equipment must be provided for some 350 men who are working on the WPA projects which the city sponsors.

All equipment has been selected with an eye to increasing the efficiency of our snow fighting force. The equipment described above has been carefully selected after thorough investigation as to suitability, quality and economy of operation. The prices were obtained after competitive bidding and are as low, we believe, as any large contractor could obtain and much lower than would obtain purchasing methods are not the same as ours.

The equipment described above is necessary for the proper carrying on of the work of the board of public works and the WPA, and I recommend that your honorable body appropriate the sum of $24,678.62 for the purchase thereof, and that you authorize an equipment bond issue in the sum of $24,678.62 for that purpose, said bond issue to be held in 1941, and that in the meantime you authorize the issuance of temporary certificates of indebtedness in the sum of $24,678.62, payable in 1941, and that said certificates be paid from the proceeds of the said bond issue, when sold.

Five per cent of the cost of the equipment described herein has been included in the 1940 budget, as required by state law.

Yours truly,
C. J. HEISELMAN,
Mayor.

Willkie Spurs Corporation Gifts

man who contributes to this campaign to think that by reason of a large contribution he is entitled to any reward in the way of an ambassadorship, or any other public position."

He announced he had issued instructions that contributions be limited to $5,000 and that all contributions from corporations be refused.

"In my judgment," he said, "this is a people's movement, and I want to keep it that way."

"The more $1 contributions, the more small contributions there are," he said, "the happier I shall be."

At the same time, he announced the appointment of a 12-member campaign advisory committee, headed by Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota. The committee's members represent all sections of the nation and include leaders who were active in the pre-convention campaigns for Thomas E. Dewey and Senator Robert A. Taft.

No Decision

He said no decision had been reached on the selection of a national committee chairman, but let it be known that his campaign setup might include a triumvirate composed of a campaign manager, a personal representative and the national committee chairman.

Willkie will meet with a sub-committee of the Republican national committee on Friday to discuss practical organization problems.

In his policy statement, Willkie placed particular emphasis upon his no-contributions-from-corporations instruction.

"I don't want any corporate contribution in any guise, whether it be by advertising in campaign books, or programs, or anything else," he declared. "I don't want corporate contributions directly or indirectly. I don't want anybody connected with the national committee, or any local committee, to raise the money under the guise of corporate advertising."

Members of Committee

Members of his advisory committee, in addition to Governor Stassen, are: Rep. Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts, minority leader of the house and permanent chairman of the Republican national convention; Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, a Willkie convention floor leader; David S. Ingalls of Cleveland, manager of Senator Taft's nomination campaign; Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, who made the speech putting Willkie in nomination; Governor Ralph L. Carr of Colorado, a Willkie convention floor leader; Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, who was co-manager of Dewey's nomination campaign; Paul John Kruesi, Chattanooga, who was chairman of the Tennessee delegation to the Republican convention; Oren Root, Jr., young New York lawyer, who was one of the first to take an active part in Willkie's campaign; Mrs. Ruth De Young Kohler, special writer for the Chicago Tribune and wife of Herbert V. Kohler, president of the Kohler Company, Kohler, Wis.; Rep. J. William Ditter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee, and Senator John G. Townsend of Delaware, chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee.

Over-Time Parkers Put Up Bail for Appearance

Nine automobilists were arrested Tuesday by the police, seven of them for overtime parking in the uptown business section.

Those arrested for overtime parking were Bertha Snyder of Mt. Marion; Sidney Marks of Rensselaer; George Fay of East Kingston; Leon Pincus of Syracuse; Arthur J. Burns of 113 Main street; Mortimer T. Englander of 271 Main street, and Dina Broglio of West Park. All furnished $2 cash bail for their appearance in police court today.

Bertha Snyder this morning was fined $2 and the other auto drivers forfeited their cash bail with the exception of Mr. Burns whose case was set for later.

Emil Boscherino of 14 Derrin-bacher street, charged with operating a car without a muffler, received a suspended sentence when he had a muffler installed.

ruma "that the people of the Sixth Ward should receive relief from such conditions."

Alderman Donnaruma said that looking ahead to the future the mayor in his annual message had pointed out that whoever was mayor and members of the common council in 1944 would have a tough time. He said that he would give the mayor credit for being willing to assume all responsibility in the purchase of new machinery, but Donnaruma said he did not believe that the city would get the full measure of work out of the proposed new machinery. He pointed out that "we will work this new equipment for a full year before we pay for it by this bond issue."

"This present scare of inflated prices," he said, "is unfounded."

Approve Appropriations

The welfare department's request that $700 be transferred from the department's receipts account and used for the purchase of a new station wagon, was said, "that the council look into its water department."

Alderman Donnaruma said that he understood that the city of Kingston was the largest taxpayer in the town of Woodstock. He said that the city pays more in interest on its water works property than any other city.

Is Run Efficiently

"I do not agree with Alderman Donnaruma," said Alderman Zucca, "as Kingston's water department is being run efficiently. The alderman from the Sixth should not overlook the fact that Poughkeepsie takes its water from the Hudson river. There is no comparison between the water supplied Kingston and that used in Poughkeepsie."

"We are losing money on our water department," said Alderman Donnaruma.

"We are not," retorted Alderman Zucca, "we are making money. Last year we retired some $45,000 in water bonds from the revenues of the water department. We should not forget that in Kingston we have the lowest cost and the best water in the state."

"We own land in Woodstock," replied Alderman Donnaruma, "that cannot be used for any purpose."

"That land was bought to protect our water system," replied Alderman Zucca. He called attention to the fact that when the NYA wanted to establish a camp near one of the city's reservoirs that the city had objected and that the camp had been located elsewhere.

mander Ganeval left France December 20, 1939, to discuss the problem with Baron Mannerheim, Finnish supreme commander. He returned January 20, 1940.

The DNB account said the French high command had been working on "a general plan of armed intervention in Finland" since January 16, 1940. As outlined, there was to be disembarkation of Allied troops at Petsamo, in Arctic Finland.

"At the same time," it said "harbors and airports on the Norwegian west coast were to be brought as a precaution into Allied hands," with operations possibly extending into Sweden with the occupation of the ore mines of Gallivare.

The purported documents were reported found in a party destroyed train when German troops captured La Charite.

An official announcement through DNB, official news agency, asserted they disclosed plans by which Germany was to be overwhelmed.

Firstly, "by cutting off or destroying Swedish ore mines; and by destroying Rumanian oil wells and Soviet oil wells of Baku."

Secondly, "by drawing Scandinavia into the war against Germany, whereby 10 divisions were to be gained, and by entangling Rumania, Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia, whereby it was hoped that about 100 divisions were to be mobilized against Germany."

This strategy was called one of "a front of wear and tear," according to the finds, it was stated.

Covering Letter

A German report asserted a covering letter by General Maurice Gustave Gamelin dated May 12, 1940, was found which ordered that the strictest secrecy should be maintained because "if one of these documents fell into the enemy's hands" the German high command "would obtain a political instrument which it would exploit against the Allies."

Gamelin then was commander in chief of the Allied armies. Document three in the DNB list was a telegram from Gamelin to Weygand March 12, 1940 in which Gamelin was quoted:

"In my opinion, operations in the middle Orient must be led by the British high command and in the Caucasus by the Turkish command, since the latter operation will be carried out through Turkish forces in cooperation with the air force and possibly special contingents."

The document relating to the projected Finnish campaign said that in an inter-Allied military discussion of January 31-February 2, the English decidedly favored operations against Northern Swedish ore mines the projected Petsamo operation was renounced by the Allied supreme war council February 5.

The document gave purported details of Allied plans for operations in Finland, with the cooperation of the British and French fleets, and said, "opening of the Nordic theatre of war... offers extraordinary interest. Aside from the moral advantages, the blockade becomes more effective, but foremost it is cutting off ore transport to Germany which counts."

"In this connection, the operation in the Balkans, if combined with the Scandinavian undertaking, would be apt to strengthen economic throttling of the Reich... militarily, action in the Balkans would be more advantageous for France than in Scandinavia."

The French-Turkish matter was labelled document four.

Measles Epidemic Has Run Course in City

With no cases of measles reported so far this month, and but 11 cases during June, it indicates that the epidemic that has gripped the city since the first of the year has run its course.

The first case of measles was reported to the health department during the last week in January. In February the number increased, and before the epidemic had ended more than 700 cases had been reported in Kingston.

During June there were 20 cases of pneumonia reported in Kingston. The majority of the cases were among children. It is rather unusual to have such a large number of pneumonia cases reported at this season of the year, and it is thought that it was largely due to the unseasonable weather that has prevailed.

No scarlet fever cases have been reported in the city since May.

Freeman Photo

Duana J. Forman (above), of 119 South Manor avenue, was appointed alderman of the Second ward on Tuesday to fill the unexpired term of the late Alderman James F. Locke. The appointment was made by Mayor C. J. Heiselman. Alderman Forman has been a resident of the Second ward practically all his life, and has served with the engineering corps of the U. S. A. as a member of the board of directors. During the World War, Alderman Forman served with the engineering corps of the U. S. A. overseas, and at the close of the war received honorable discharge and returned to this city. Shortly after his discharge from the army he embarked in the grocery business. He is a Republican in politics, and this is the first public office he has held.

Sunday in September the worship services will be held in the Baptist Church on Albany avenue, and the Rev. Arthur S. Cole will be the preacher. These churches also will join with the other churches of the city in the union Sunday evening services at 7 o'clock in Lawton Park during July and August.

Special 'Movie' Features Program

Hutton Park Night Has Other Entertainment

A special patriotic talking picture, "The History of Our Flag," will feature the Community Night program at Hutton Park tonight. The film is a documentary dramatization of the American flag, and traces the history and evolution of the flag to the present time, telling the proper uses and many of the common abuses of our national emblem.

The children at Hutton Park have also arranged a very impressive stage program which will begin at 8 o'clock. Music will be the big feature of the stage performance with numerous instrumental and vocal selections listed. Several recitations will also be given, and the entire stage program will be followed by the moving pictures.

In addition to "The History of Our Flag," four other reels of talking pictures will be shown, including a special track feature which will show the nation's best pole vaulters and high jumpers in action. This picture, "Jumps and Pole Vaults," will be especially interesting to local people since many of the performers are listed to compete in Kingston this month. The other pictures are "Fakkars of the East," "Swamp-land," and a cartoon, "Fresh Ham."

Children of the park will hold a cake sale and refreshment sale throughout the evening.

That Willkie Boy's Pranks Disturbed Oldsters Back Home in Indiana—But He Went Places

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer

"So you're the girl Wendell's going to marry?" Wendell Willkie's mother said in 1917, when the man who has just stamped the Republican party was on the trail of his bride-to-be.

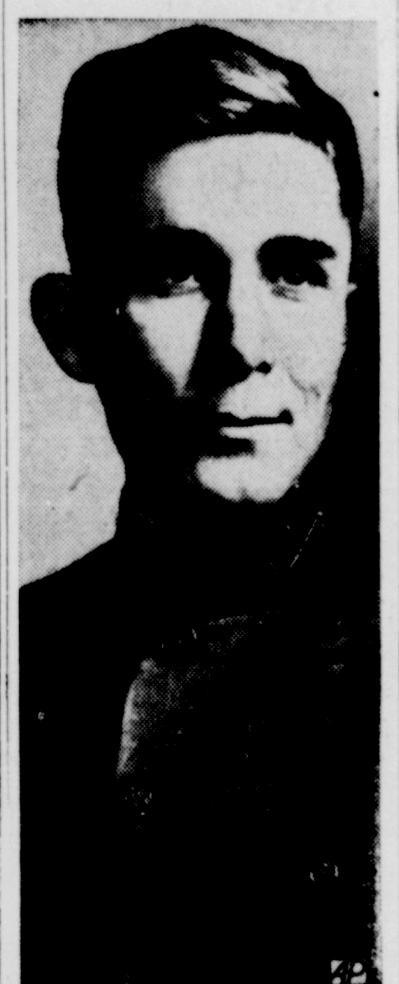

Mrs. Willkie was talking to Edith Wilk, spunky, fair-haired, blue-eyed girl from Rushville, Ind., a few miles from Elwood, the Willkie home town.

Edith Wilk stammered, blushed. "Oh, no, no," she protested. "It must be a mistake. I've just met him. And—well, I never heard anything about it."

"No mistake," laughed Mrs. Willkie. "Wendell's got it all settled. He's told me he had met the girl he was going to marry. He said it would be so easy, because your name is already Wilk."

Pranks and Prospects

This was Edith Wilk's introduction to life with that man-always-in-a-hurry who, then, never seemed to know where he was going.

Enlisted day after U. S. declared war on Germany; served overseas as captain in 825th Field Artillery.

This Indiana Girl was Edith Wilk . . .

Wendell changed her name to Willkie

Later on, in 1918, after Wendell had volunteered and before he went to France with the field artillery, she went to training camp to visit her fiancé. Her aunt went along as a chaperone and it was the aunt who came away stammering.

"He's—why he's going to be a great man," said aunt. The Willkies were married before "Win" went to France.

"Win" Willkie had a way with people, only in his youth he was always messing up his promising future with escapades that made even good friends despair. There was the time when, as college pranks, he and his brother took on the entire police force of Bloomington, Ind., with their bare fists—and landed in jail.

Chased from Germany

All biographers of Wendell Willkie tell you of the Willkie family beginnings. All four of Willkie's Protestant grandparents were chased out of Germany when the Democrats lost the revolution of 1848.

Willkie's father settled in 1885 in Elwood, Ind. There were reared the six children of the present Willkie generation—four boys (every one a success in the accepted American sense) and two girls (ditto).

Elwood early gave up any thought of adjusting the Willkies to conventional small-town life, and more or less accustomed itself to the Willkies.

By the time Win was 10, the mothers of the town had grown used to having the noses of their children bloodied by one of those Willkie kids; had quit stopping at the gate to gawk at all eight of the Willkie clan immersed deep and satisfied in their own performance of some Shakespearean play in the side yard of their home.

The elder Willkie ascended and descended with the Elwood gas boom, but with his wife—the first woman admitted to the bar of Indiana—he hung out a shingle and managed to educate the children, while cleaning up the town's organized vice.

Slow to Decide

But the father believed children should work to find their own niche. The children did, but Win was slow making up his mind.

He entered Indiana University at 15, couldn't decide whether it was Jeffersonian democracy he was for, or socialism. Between sessions, he tramped the great West, learned to play a devastating game of poker, earned his way in harvest fields, hotel kitchens, mining camps, tent hotels, and industrial plants.

After college came a lean season or two as history teacher in Coffeyville, Kan. Still keenly aware of his father's losses in the Elwood gas collapse, he decided to make money, and thus make himself free. So he returned to Bloomington and law school.

Then came his marriage and war experience. Home from France, the great decision was in front of him.

Should he, or should he not, turn on that personal magnetism of his and run for Congress?

"You should not," lectured Frank C. Dailey, Indianapolis lawyer.

"But what—?" queried Willkie.

"Leave that to me," said Dailey.

He Didn't Get Away

Willkie did. His decision to abide by the Dailey counsel was the turning point in his life. Dailey got Willkie a job as a lawyer with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., in Akron, Ohio. There he cut a wide swath attired in his big, black Bill Borah hat, he argued for big corporations in courtrooms, and for human liberties off duty and on. By now he was an active Democrat, in politics. In a short few years he was a lawyer in a most successful firm, and the eyes of one of the country's biggest utility magnates were on him.

"Don't let him get away from us," pleaded B. C. Cobb, the Commonwealth & Southern executive, with his Ohio friends.

And so the star of Wendell Willkie rose in the financial heavens, carried him to New York in 1930 and to the fight of his life—up to now: his defense of his own utility system against the New Deal TVA in the Tennessee valley.

Next: Willkie and what he calls cock-eyed law.

Burke Explains Social Security Act Protection

Many people do not yet realize that they have insurance protection under the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance program of the Social Security Act—protection which will bring a monthly check to families as well as to the retiring worker over 65 years of age, it was announced today by Charles E. Burke, manager of the Kingston field office.

Five years ago when the Social Security Act was passed, it included insurance to provide an income for aged workers after their retirement. Last year, however, Congress amended the Social Security Act to provide additional benefits for the wives and children of retiring workers and for the widows and school-age children of workers who die in their prime, Mr. Burke stated.

These are not relief payments, Mr. Burke explained; neither are they, as in the case of workmen's compensation, paid only if the worker's death is caused by his work. Old-Age and Survivors Insurance payments come to the family of the deceased worker regardless of any other income. He and his employer have contributed the taxes which constitute the premiums of the system.

So long as the worker is regularly employed, so long as one penny is being deducted from each dollar of his check and properly reported, he can feel sure that the premiums on this insurance policy are being paid, and that his wife and young children have protection which would bring them a regular monthly check in the case of his death, it was added. Nearly a million Americans will be receiving Old-Age and Survivors Insurance benefits by the end of the current year, according to current estimates.

When a husband dies his widow should immediately apply to the nearest Social Security Board field office. (The Kingston Field Office serves the people in Ulster county).

At the field office the widow can fill out the necessary claims forms, Mr. Burke explained. These forms indicate the basis of her claim. In addition, she will be called on for evidence that her husband is dead, that she was in fact his wife, and that the children for whom claim is made were his children or were adopted children supported by him as members of the household. Mr. Burke advises claimants to bring to his office all such proofs.

Benefits paid under this plan may be as high as $85 a month for a single family. The amount of the monthly payment is related to the average monthly wage of the worker during his period of employment. The Kingston field office can supply a folder which shows in detail how to calculate the benefits under the plan, Mr. Burke explained.

The maximum benefits which would come in 1940 to a family in which the average monthly wage of the worker was $100 would be $52 a month. The maximum benefit which would come to a family in which the average monthly wage of the father had been $200 would be $72.80 a month. These figures assume that the worker had been employed steadily for four years in employment covered by the act. The maximum benefits will increase as workers have opportunity for a longer period of work in covered employment.

Bridgeport, Conn.—When Daniel Verity, Oyster Bay deckhand, was struck by an automobile he didn't worry about his leg and head injuries half as much as about a stack of hamburger sandwiches he was delivering to his crew mates. July Fourth

All hail that which is ours in America... Independence!... Heaven's next best gift to that of life and an immortal soul.

Nell—I hear that you and Elmer are engaged. I don't suppose he told you that he was engaged to me last year?

Anna—He did say something about there being things in his past he was ashamed of, but he didn't go into details.

Patriot's Delight

Widepread across the happy U. S. A. Is celebrated the familiar day, East, West, and South—need I say also North?

The habit is to stentorize the Fourth; The average citizen, according to my credo, Is independent with a loud torpedo, Or with a baby cannon quiet rends And burns his Roman candles at both ends.

While, I go wildly grateful to survive, Hold over my huzzas for July 5!

Haughty Mistress (to new maid)—I'm a woman of few words. If I beckon with my finger that means "Come."

New Maid (cheerfully)—That suits me, madam. I'm a woman of few words, too. If I shake my head, that means "I ain't comin'."

Enjoy a safe and sane Fourth by observing the following cautions:

Don't hold firecrackers, even the smallest, in your hands.
Don't throw firecrackers at anyone.
Don't shoot them off under bottles.
Don't carry them in your pockets.
Don't play with or carry dynamite caps.
Let firearms alone.
Avoid gunpowder and toy pistols.
Remember, that gunpowder burns are dangerous.

Gentlemen (at police station)—Could I see the man who was arrested for robbing our house last night?

Desk Sergeant—This is very irregular. Why do you want to see him?

Gentleman—I want to ask him how he got into the house without awakening my wife.

Let us resolve that every American shall have a fair chance, that none shall carry unlawful and unnecessary burden; that we shall engage in this process of building a greater, cleaner, more honorable America. Then Independence Day will be worthy of the name, and the labors and judgment of our fathers will be confirmed.

Bill—I can't see why you are always playing pinocle with that guy Boggs. He's such a bad loser.

Will—That's very true, but I'd rather play with a bad loser than any kind of winner.

A shoe store in Marion, Indiana, advertises thusly:

"Anybody who wears our shoes will have a fit."

An attractive looking woman stepped up to a neat-appearing show case in the meat market, and after she had bought several pieces of meat, she asked:

Woman—Have you any shin-bone I could use for soup stock?

Butcher (taking long shin-bone and balancing it on his left hand)—Here's just the thing.

Woman—What's it worth?

Butcher—Just a half-dollar.

Woman—It's such a large piece, would you mind cutting it at the joint?

Butcher—Sure, I will.

Knutter cutting off the large knuckle he again balanced the long shin-bone on his hand and said:

Butcher—You may have this for forty cents.

Woman (looking at the piece for a moment, then at the knuckle)—Is that piece you cut off worth only ten cents?

Butcher (hesitating)—Yes, madam.

Woman—All right, I'll take the knuckle.

YESTERDAY: Julia, who lived with the Tacks while her father was in the army, was killed in a car accident. She was a young girl, daughter of an army officer and a Russian refugee. Julia hates her.

Chapter Eight Number Three

JULIA grew almost cheerful as we played bridge with Adam and Gerald. Around eleven Jeff came in, spoke briefly and went up to his room. Julia threw down a half-played hand.

"Now I can go home," she said and stood up.

"Has Felicia come back?" I asked Adam.

"I haven't seen her. She must be doing the town."

"Then I think Julia should stay with me. I'm sure the War Department would frown on my unchaperoned state."

Julia hesitated. "I'll telephone Mimi," she said and went inside.

She came back presently to report that, although Mimi was still out, Sandra had gone right to bed. Sandra, was going right to bed; and the cook was there, in case she needed anything.

"Never mind manners," Julia observed to no one in particular. "I'll stay."

It must have been some hours later that I woke from a deep sleep to see Julia bending over me.

"Someone at the side window," she whispered. "What shall we do?"

I listened and heard it too. A scuffling sound and then faint, rasping on the screen.

I sat up and put my feet on the floor. I had no plan. The rooms around us were unoccupied, except for Felicia Bridewell's, and I had not heard her come in. If I screamed probably every man in the building would come streaking down in their pajamas and the prowler would fade into the night, leaving us to make lame explanations. That might require living down. On the other hand, if I could quietly summon Adam—

The fact that I did not know the location of his rooms occurred to me before I was halfway to the corridor door. I don't know what I would have done, for at that moment I heard a most reassuring "Damn!" in a stage whisper from the window; and a second later—

"Kay! For heaven's sake wake up and unlatch this screen!"

For a moment I thought I was back in college. My senior year I had a room on the ground floor and its window sills were worn smooth by girls who had over-stayed their late period.

The voice was unquestionably feminine. My mind registered that fact with relief an instant before I identified it.

"Felicia! What on earth are you doing?" I demanded.

I found the button of the light switch and clicked it, glimpsing a blurred white face at the screen. The door was ajar and I ducked out of sight.

"Turn off that light!" pleaded the voice. Let me in before someone sees me!

Alarmed, I turned it off. Julia was already at the window, unlatching the latch of the screen. It stuck a little, but between us we managed to free it and push it outward.

"Give me a hand," groaned Felicia. "I'm so worn out and weak I couldn't climb over a pin."

Felicia's New Girdle

I COULD easily believe that from the dead weight she proved to be, and the way she winced when she got her knees on the sill. Even then I could see that there was something wrong with her silhouette, outlined against the Oxford gray night. She wore no hat, and her hair, usually so sculptured, fell in a state. And the arms, at which she was tugging were bare to the shoulders.

We dragged her in somehow and she revived enough to pull down the shade.

"Now you can turn on the light," she said grimly.

I found the switch again and flooded the room with light.

"Well!" said Julia. "You have been on a party!"

Felicia blinked at us and for once made no retort.

While I reminded her not to wake up the club; but I did not discourage her too severely, for it was the first time I could remember having heard Julia laugh. Nor was I feeling too sober myself. I don't know whether it was the effect of the hellish shoe or the somewhat inappropriate frivolity of that girlish made poor Felicia an unforgettable spectacle.

She did not join in our laughter, but she seemed resigned to it. "If you don't mind I'll sit down," she said, and sank onto the nearest straight chair.

There was a faint echo of her normal dryness in her voice, but it was a weak effort. I looked at her more closely and saw that she was badly frightened, that she did not yet feel safe. I got her a glass of water from my bathroom and helped her hold it while she drained it thirstily, her teeth clattering a little against the rim.

"Man With A Mask"

"THANKS," she said, and winced. "No, never mind—it's nothing. I'm sitting on a burr, but I'm too tired to move."

I brought her my housecoat and helped her out of it. The girlish, which she scrutinized with a curious care, swearing softly when she discovered a rent in the back of its diminutive skirt.

"I thought it caught on that barbed wire," she said. "I took it off and carried it until I got near the quarters. Well, why not? I can grow new skin, but this was twenty-five dollars half price at Marshall Field's." Her lips tightened, her eyes gleamed. "I told the thief son of Satan if he made me strip to the skin I'd claw his eyes out. He was touched by my maiden modesty—let me keep the girle on—"

She stopped, saw our loose-jawed astonishment.

"Oh, yes, I'm number three. Stepped on my running board at the red light this side of the village, shoved a gun in my ribs and told me to move over. Dropped me the girle on the road back of the post."

"What did he look like?" demanded Julia.

"Little man with a mask—that's all I can tell you. I didn't mind him so much, but I'm deathly afraid of snakes. Every time I thought it was one. She shuddered and looked sick with fright. "I'd have been here earlier but when I got near the post I had to look out for sentries. I'd rather not have this discussed around the barracks. That's why I came to your window. There's a bright light out in front of the club and a sentry patrolling the back row."

She rose wearily, limped toward the door. "Thanks for the first aid, I'll bring back your housecoat in the morning."

"Isn't there anything else we can do?"

"No, thanks. I've got iodine—I'll anoint the worst scratches and fall into bed. Oh, you might over-see breakfast; and don't let anyone wake me before noon."

It was not a night for sleeping. Perhaps an hour later—possibly longer—the bugler went crazy out on the parade ground. At least that was the way it sounded. The call was wild and clamorous, and it was still black night—too early for reveille.

My first thought when I came to, sitting up in bed, was that the end of the world had come and Gabriel was blowing his trumpet; and the answering wail of a siren sounded like the condemned souls of all the centuries.

Julia stirred and grumbled in the other bed, then I heard her feet hit the floor.

"What's the matter?" I asked nervously. "What's happened?"

"Fire," she said briefly in a sleep-husky voice.

The bugle and the siren kept up their dreadful clamor, shattering the peace of the sleeping post; and presently, as an undertone, we could hear doors slamming and voices calling excitedly back and forth from the barracks.

Julia was at the window now. "It may be just a drill. I don't see anything."

She padded into the sitting room, which has windows on two sides, and I slid out of bed and joined her.

"There it is—over there!" she told me excitedly.

There was a red glow in the sky and an occasional flame that leaped skyward. The fire truck was blasting its way down the line and silhouetted against its moving lights we could see soldiers marching on the parade ground in front of their barracks.

"What's over there?" I asked her. "The stables?"

"Yes—no! I think it's too far to the west. Heavens, I hope it isn't the poor horses!"

She whirled, ran back into the bedroom and turned on the light. "Get some clothes on, we'll go see."

She was already dressed and running a comb through her hair by the time I had found slacks and a shirt and a pair of low-heeled shoes.

"I'll back," she said, and dashed out of the room. I could hear running footsteps and men's voices as she opened the door to the hall. Then I found I had my slacks on backward and, groaning feebly, climbed out of them again.

YESTERDAY: Felicia Bridewell is the third victim of the robber. She crawls in Kay's window and everything but her girle, shoes and stockings. That same night a fire breaks out.

Chapter Nine The Man In The Car

JULIA was coming out of Felicia's room when I reached the corridor. She beckoned me and started double timing toward the back of the building, talking as she ran.

"Shows how much sense I have," she said. "I went in to get the keys to her car. The minute I turned on the light I saw that corset and remembered." She giggled hysterically. "She was asleep and snoring through all this. No, I didn't wake her. What was the use?"

A red taillight was glowing against the darkness of the long garage behind the club. It started to move and a small roadster backed into view. Julia hailed it before I think, she realized who the driver was.

Jeff's voice answered her gruffly. "What are you doing here? But he held open the door and told us to get in. "You can drop me at the troop."

He made no further comment, and the silence grew uncomfortable when he had finished shifting gears. So I asked him where the fire was, and he thought it was out in the bosque near the target range. Brush fire? He didn't know.

His answers sounded terse and a little bored. Between us Julia made no sound and I could feel my mystate for Jeff Tack growling. Cold, surly ill-bred—

He stepped on the gas suddenly and the car fairly leaped down the row in front of the barracks. He braked with the same disregard for mechanical and human comfort and with a swift movement was out of the car.

"I'll walk back, or pick up a lift," he said aloofly. "I hope you'll use some discretion, and not get too close to the fire."

Without further waste of words he was gone. Julia woke from her trance, slid into the driver's seat and engaged the clutch. She did not speak until we had turned onto the back road that led toward the target range, and then she sounded almost happy.

"You can see," she said, "how nice he is when you get to know him."

"What's back here?" I asked as the car turned left beyond the target range. Not far ahead we could see the wild orange and red glow of flames and a column of black smoke ascending against the gray night sky.

"Nothing that I know of. There's a plank bridge over a gulley that runs behind the target butts and beyond that a wooded hill that's the edge of the reservation. The road ends at the foot of the hill. When they're firing you can even come this far, it's roped off."

Raging Inferno

A THOUGHT struck me. "You don't suppose it's an airplane that crashed trying to land on the range?"

"No pilot would be such a fool on a night as dark as this." But she sounded worried. "Unless it was a forced landing. There's a perfectly good landing field only a few miles from here."

She jammed on her brakes. The narrow dirt road was clogged with cars. Farther ahead a fire truck was outlined in black against the red fog which was billowing up out of the gulley.

We left the car at the side of the road and stumbled through sand and undergrowth toward the flames. I could see now that soldiers were manning the truck, working with disciplined silence and speed to the accompaniment of the steady hissing of chemicals and the ominous roar of rapacious, glutting fire.

My heart lurched as I saw what the fire was feeding on—a car, nosed down and heeled over on its side at the bottom of the gulley. Once a car—now a raging inferno at the mercy of those ravaging flames. They were completely out of control, elemental, mocking the puny human efforts to check them.

I was standing beside Julia in silent fascinated horror, staring, moistening my dry lips, when the fire veered at some momentary whim and I saw a dark shadow within the car.

I must have screamed, for suddenly I felt two hands clamp onto my shoulders and I stumbled backward into someone's arms. I twisted, saw that it was Adam, and hid my face against his chest, trembling so violently that I could hardly stand.

"There's someone in that car," I moaned, and he did not contradict me.

He held me for an instant; then, with one arm still supporting me, he backed from the gulley, back behind the fire truck out of sight of that feeding fire.

"I'm sorry you saw that," he said in a shaken voice, while I still clung to him. "I didn't see you in time, or I would have stopped you. We can't do anything, of course. It was already too late when we got here."

"But who is it? You must know that."

He did not answer me for a moment, and suddenly I remembered of Cincinnati on the Cortland-Chenango county line. Still other counties are seriously considering the program; they include Orange, Suffolk, Saratoga, Cattaraugus, and Livingston.

Nearly 1,400 Attend 4-H Club Congress

Ithaca, N. Y., July 3—Nearly 1,400 farm boys and girls from all parts of New York state were registered at the 19th annual 4-H club congress at Cornell Univerbered Mimi Pennant, who had gone out alone in her car that evening, who had not yet returned when Julia telephoned.

Julia came stumbling back to us then, looking wild and disheveled in the strange light.

"It's a coupé," she cried breathlessly. "Mimi's car is a coupé. Adam, who is it? Tell me the truth!"

"Not Mimi," he said, and added reluctantly. "It's Felicia Bridewell's car. I saw the license plate. She must have missed the bridge in the dark, though what she was doing was out here—"

"Oh no! No, you don't understand—Felicia's home in bed," I told him eagerly. I felt as if a clamp had been removed from my throat. For an instant the relief was stupendous. Not Mimi—not Felicia. The thief. But—the trembling seized me again—nonetheless, whatever his misdeeds, a human being trapped in that blazing hell—

Julia was answering his quick fire of questions, describing Felicia's arrival at the club in her girle, and her explanations. It didn't sound in the least funny now.

Asbes

A SOLDIER came up and saluted. I let go Adam's arm and stepped back, controlling myself, while he listened to the report. The thick undergrowth in the gulley was afire and there was some danger of the flames spreading to the wooded slope behind the range. Adam went off to see about it.

A small crowd of spectators had gathered. Officers and men, a few women. Colonel Pennant was there, and Jeff Tack and Gerald Beaufort. They joined us and we told again our story of Felicia and the theft of her car. I saw Captain Jones, the doctor standing at the edge of the gulley looking down and shaking his head. The ambulance was just behind the fire truck and two Hospital Corps men lounged against it smoking cigarettes.

The fire began to die at last, leaving behind it a twisted hulk of red and black metal and the charred remains of what had once been a man. Adam came to us, looking quite gray and tired and told us we'd better go home.

"We're going to try to get the body out," he said.

Pink dawn was streaking the sky and the lake when Julia dropped me at the club and went home. I undressed and stood for a long time under the cold shower, trying to shock some life back into my quivering muscles.

I killed as much time as I could dressing, but the mess hall was still closed when, all in clean white, and every hair painfully coaxing into place, I came out into the deserted lounge. So I paced the veranda smoking cigarettes that made me feel no better until I heard dishes and silver clattering inside.

The regular waiter had not come back. The same one who had served us at dinner brought me orange juice and a black coffee—two cups of it. Over the last cup I asked him what had happened to Immerman.

"Late," he said disgustedly. "Had the afternoon and evening off yesterday, but was supposed to be here for breakfast. He'll catch it." He offered some silver; down at the head of the table.

"Mrs. Bridewell sick?" I told him she had a headache and was not to be disturbed, and he started a chatty conversation about the fire. I could see that the story of Felicia's mishap had reached the barracks after all; but Adam's entrance, looking as stern as I had ever seen him, dried up the fount of small talk.

"Where's Immerman?" he asked, and was told of Immerman's defection. Then the waiter scurried off to the kitchen.

I seized the opportunity to tell him about Immerman at the Post Exchange, and he listened with a peculiar, startled expression.

"That's very interesting," he said when I had finished. He rose, went out into the lounge, and I could hear him telephoning.

He came back in presently, sat down and salted his grapefruit. I made the man gesture of passing him the pepper, but he took it from me and set it down without comment.

"Immerman did not sleep in barracks," he said when the waiter had taken himself off again. I didn't quite follow his thought, but he said no more. And presently, because my patience would not let me wait until he had gone through the usual oatmeal and ham and eggs, I asked him if the body had been identified.

He shook his head. "Small hope of that, unless there was bridge-work and we can locate the dentist."

I need not have worried about the ham and eggs. He left his oatmeal half finished, pushed back his chair and rose.

"We're going out again and sift the ashes for clues as soon as the camp has cooled enough. You'd better wake Felicia pretty soon and tell her to get dressed. There might be something she would recognize—cuff links, buttons, a ring. We'll need some confirmation of the fact that it's the same man who held her up last night—there's always the chance the thief had other fish to fry."

They were told by L. R. Simons, state director of extension, that "we are proud of our 4-H clubs in New York state. We may not have the largest enrollment, but I believe no other state can excel us in the quality of work and leadership."

He said the country is fortunate in not being involved in the so-called "world youth movement," and that "it is our good fortune to live in a land where there is no censorship, a land where democratic rights and civil liberties still prevail."

Boys' Division Of Y.M.C.A. Report

Annual Report for Boys' Division Given by Director H. R. Weston

Harold R. Weston, Boys Work Director of the local Y. M. C. A. submitted the following annual report for the Boys' Division.

The year 1939-40 has seen many changes in the Boys' Department of the Y. M. C. A.

During the summer months of 1939 the first "Y" Day Camp was run on the Camp property at Lake Katrine. It was felt that the condition of the camp buildings was up to the standards of good camping, that is the "Y" goal. Thus the regular campers were urged to attend Camp Van Schoonhoven of the Troy "Y" at Averill Park. Those boys who went to Van Schoonhoven returned firm friends of a fine camp. The Day Camp at Preumaker was run for four weeks and was successful as far as it went. Four weeks did not seem long enough a period considering that another camp was running on a similar basis for six weeks. This year the Day Camp will run for six weeks.

The yearly program swung into action late in September. The handicap of an empty swimming pool was greatly felt during the early season.

October set the stage for the tragic curtain of an otherwise splendid year. Ellis T. Bookwalter, "Bugs" to hundreds of boys was stricken with an incurable malady during October and while he was fighting a superhuman battle, we carried on at the "Y."

November was the first full month of program and a good month too, with some 1200 boys using the department. The workshop made its first halting appearance on the scene and was eagerly greeted by our "gang."

No equipment—no material but these things were of no account to the boys. They flocked to the shop and enjoyed the sawdust in their hair.

December bowed in with the shop the busy place of making Christmas presents for mothers, dads, aunts and uncles. The Hi-Y Assembly at Albany was a great success with the Kingston delegation helping fundamentally in effecting the Property and Liability Insurance Law.

Christmas was a sad time at the "Y." The Great Intelligence had at last called "Bugs" to his eternal home and he drifted from us on Christmas Eve. We were saddened greatly but carried on in the way we knew "Bugs" would have wanted us to.

Early in January the Hi-Y de-

Plan 4-H Journey to New York World's Fair

Ithaca, N. Y., July 3—Four-H club members in New York state are being offered an opportunity to take part in a farm youth tour to the New York World's Fair, August 16, 17, and 18. Lower costs are extended to the club members and any number can be accommodated.

They will travel with farm bureau parties in air-conditioned coaches, on the New York Central or Lehigh Valley railroads. Dates of the tour come during farm week at the fair.

In addition to visits to the fair and to attending a program for farm youth day, the 4-H club boys and girls will have a tour by boat of New York City and take a boat cruise around Manhattan island.

More information about the farm youth tour may be had from county 4-H club agents.

cided that they wanted "to do something." Careful examination brought forth that the boys wanted to "go some place," and Washington, D. C. was decided upon. To finance such an undertaking was no small task but the boys brought Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, "The Tune Detective" to Kingston for a lecture and raised nearly half of the necessary funds for their trip. January also brought to the Boys Department, Arthur Church who has taken over the supervision of the work shop. Mr. Church has made the shop a focal point of interest for many boys. He has worked wonders with little material and little equipment. The emergence of the shop from a rickety old bench with but a hammer and a few nails into a newly painted, well lighted, two long benched real shop is due in part of Mr. Church's perseverance over many trying months.

February saw the Spaeth lecture a success and a splendid rise in membership in the department. March sent forth the Washington group to a perfect trip to their nation's capital. While there the group visited every shrine of national fame and were fortunate in sitting in on a session of the Supreme Court with Justice Hughes presiding. The Easter vacation draws thousands of high school youngsters to Washington each year and a gay carefree crowd they are. We met hundreds of them, but not a group nor youngster behaved with any more dignity, loyalty and discretion than did our own Kingston High School boys. The old saying "boys will be boys" is founded on a deeply rooted psychological fact but our boys returned from their trip each time satiated with a good time yet knowing that they had given no problems to their interested and loyal counselors.

April saw the annual gym exhibit and dinner draw the regular yearly program to a close. Several hundred attended the dinner and exhibit at which time the annual gym awards were made.

May is now bringing us into a summer program. The attendance during the fiscal year 1939-40, lacking the months of July, August and September totals over 14,000 boys in attendance. A membership of 350 boys (200 of which are underprivileged boys) shows a wide interest in our program and brings the boys to the "Y" at their appointed time.

The Rotary Club and Rotary Jr. Club, sponsored by the senior Rotarians have had an excellent year at the "Y" coming each week for their gym, swim and meetings with regularity. Through the year they have paid weekly dues and have used their money for parties for their own group.

The Schwenck Club sponsored by Alderman-at-Large John Schwenck, closed their regular year with a party at which time they presented Mr. Schwenck with an evergreen shrub for his garden. The boys certainly appreciate Mr. Schwenck and were anxious to make their feelings tangible.

The Hasbrouck Club sponsored by Judge G. D. B. Hasbrouck has used the "Y" mainly for their gym and swim classes holding their meetings under Mr. Lutzin's direction at the Hobby House. These four clubs, the gestures of civic minded generous people are the means of keeping some two hundred boys in close contact with an athletic and fellowship program throughout the year.

The Boys' Department wishes to express its thanks to the Rotary Club for their gracious gift of tools and equipment to the work shop. Mr. Edson saw what we were trying to do and placed our problems before the Rotary Board. That group promptly voted us a gift of money for the equipment of the shop.

At this time I should like to pledge myself to the citizens of Kingston to do the best job I possibly can in working with their boys. I am very much aware of the responsibility placed upon me by our Board of Directors and by the parents of Kingston. I shall do my very best.

Respectfully submitted,
HAROLD R. WESTON,
Boys' Work Director.

Girl Reserve Club Conference Report

Delegates from Local Y.W.C.A. Attended Sessions at Lakeville, Conn.

(Official Report)

More than 140 girls from Girl Reserve Clubs of the Y.W.C.A. in New England states, northern New Jersey and eastern New York shared a fine conference experience from June 22 to 29 at Camp Sloane, Lakeville, Conn. Approximately 40 adults, Girl Reserve secretaries, advisers and professional reserve leaders, carried executive responsibilities of the leadership training camp. The delegates from the Kingston Y.W.C.A. were Virginia Johnson, junior of the Tri-Club; Rosemary Murphy, Frances Hainer, Anna Manion, members of the sophomore class; Carolyn Sullivan, Girl Reserve secretary of the Y.W.C.A., who accompanied the delegation, served as the advisor to the Evening Program Committee at the conference and also recorder of the drama Workshop groups.

The general theme, "Ourselves and Others" was the keynote of the entire program which discussions were led by capable men and women. These were: Community Relations with Dr. Carl Lunsford, a member of the Federal Reserve Committee of New York; Personal and Family Relationships with Dr. Anna Phelps, clinical director of mental hygiene in New York; Vocations with Bernice S. Smith, personnel director in Russell Sage College; Developing a Personal Philosophy with Dr. Rayburn L. By, professor of religion of the College.

The young people through participation in these discussions did not help but develop an interest of the problems which would face in the future and to develop some sense of unity in the midst of all this confusion. Clarification of many questions which are being used freely and rather thoughtlessly described in various parties made panels as well as an attempt to break down barriers of prejudices and hatreds of other races, creeds and nationalities. Much time and effort was given to help these girls build up a basic philosophy of living upon which they could stand.

Another enriching portion of the program was devoted to the drama, music, nature, craft and photography workshops under the leadership of skilled men and women. The girls received helpful hints to enter inexpensive hobbies and that they should plan for their leisure hours as well as their school or work hours. Other high spots of the daily schedule were the morning devotional service held on the hillside, the news cast of world and local affairs prepared, and delivered by a committee of girls and advisers, clinics in which local club problems were ironed out, the recreation hour and daily swim. Folk dancing became a favorite pastime as well as singing of folk music of many nations.

Mrs. Robert Speer, honorary president of the National Y.W.C.A. in her fireside chat told the girls that it was to them, the women of the future, that the world looked for a balanced and normal way of life and that they could develop this balance only by having faith in themselves and faith in their God. Another interesting comment was made by Dr. Smith when asked, "What in your opinion was the most outstanding thing of the camp?" She replied with the answer, "You wanted to know if you could live happily and harmoniously in a community in which there were people of other beliefs, of all economic levels of different social levels, of other races, nationalities and religions. You all came here and you proved it." Dr. Lunsford remarked that some of the most outstanding personalities and most intelligent campers were of the colored race.

The closing program was an inspirational ceremony in which girls were placed on the fire as symbols of the contributions received from camp experience. Each should help them build the temple which would help them bring about a world brotherhood. While each person filled part and placed her cedar sprig on the fire, the group sang the challenging hymn, "We Would Be Building."

Rough Landings, His Promise

Joseph Hyatt, gunsmith, shown on steps of his home. He'd make it tough for any parachutists who ever tried to land in his backyard.

Hyatt's No Alarmist, Agrees With Lindbergh, Favors U. S. On Alert, Trained Citizens

Lackawack Gunsmith Says Dictators Will Go Out; Has Prized Arms Collection

Lackawack, July 3 — "Every able-bodied man and boy in the United States should own at least one gun and be able to shoot well — that would be the best way to have our country prepared for any emergency."

That is the opinion of Joseph Hyatt, 59-year-old gunsmith who lives on Route 55 and has been collecting firearms as a hobby since he was a youngster.

"I know that if one of those parachutists tried to land in my backyard, he'd be a dead man before he hit the ground!" added Mr. Hyatt.

No alarmist, he thinks there is no chance of our being invaded, despite Europe's alarming configuration.

"Those dictators will disappear," continued Mr. Hyatt. "Although they are a menace to day, there's no use of our getting all steamed up because I agree with Colonel Lindbergh that there's no chance of anyone attacking us from Europe by air."

Hyatt says present war jitters could be alleviated if Americans as a whole, would follow the example of the old settlers who were "expert riflemen and had to use their rifles to secure food and defend their lives and homes."

An expert marksman, Hyatt says the general population could be trained to use firearms properly if more persons would join gun clubs. Thus, they would find a fascinating hobby, as well as provide an important factor in the nation's defense.

Valuable Collection
His firearms collection includes valuable relics and latest models. One of his most prized possessions — and probably rarest specimens of his collection — is an 1864 musket which probably was used in the Civil War.

Other unusual guns he has are: muzzle-loading slug and shot smooth bore percussion piece, made by H. Nock; an 1860 Spencer repeating rifle which is said to be one of the first successful repeating type; an 1864 rolling block Remington and Sons rifle.

Summarizing his declaration that civilians should be armed, Mr. Hyatt said women, too, should become more familiar with firearms and that everyone should "enjoy the companionship of other good citizens in learning to shoot at both moving and stationary objects with deadly accuracy."

A home and family are the safest and best of all investments, Roger Babson, noted economist and financial authority, declares. "I believe," he says, "people will come to the conclusion that a small home is safer than money in the bank, and that the only real assets are fertile lands and good children."

Incidentally, our boy had his arm in a sling after a bad spill from his bike. He was returning from a swim at the Norbert Heermann's pool and ventured up Vaney's dirt road where he crashed. After being rushed to the Kingston Hospital by Dr. Bassow he was decorated with bandages and told to keep quiet. There was some fear, at first, that he might lose a finger. Now, after very good treatment and a small operation we are informed that he will soon be as good as new. We had a chat with the doctor and he told us he thought most writers were "wacky!" We deny the allegation and defy the allegation! But we are planning to write an article on "How to Go Crazy!"

If you want to take over this job of hauling a dozen kiddies to the radio station, and then at the Country Club to put on a show without a stage or curtain — supervising all the yips and yodels of this divertimento "Al Fresco" you might also need to have some psychiatric service.

Station WKNY helped us out much by offering the studio to rehearse on Tuesday. That gave the kiddies a chance to get over "mike" fright. We started with "Star Spangled Banner" and from then on it is a sort of "Woodstock Follies."

We had a grand time in the office reading the news flashes as they came off the machine and were particularly touched by the word that 30,000 war refugee children are to be admitted into the United States from England, France, Denmark, Norway, Belgium, Poland and other devastated home areas. The children must be under 14 years.

This all tunes in with our plea for Red Cross help. Imagine babies lying at the roadside, wanting food and clothing. . . . So help the Red Cross.

Young Frankie Thomas, Jr., who will be the boy star in Robert Elwyn's production of "The Youngest," opening at the Woodstock Playhouse Thursday, July 4, will be guest of honor. We talked to Frankie's mother this morning at the Villetta and she says they will drop by the Country Club to say "Hello."

Frankie will be on the radio at 7:15 o'clock at WKNY tonight with Mrs. Samuel Scott. And, when all this children's Red Cross benefit is over we hope to do a story about Mrs. Scott. She is a very interesting lady.

But more now about Frankie. He has just returned from Hollywood with his mother, and has been in Maplewood, N. J., playing "Ah, Wilderness!" with Sinclair Lewis. Sinclair will be up later this season to star in an Elwyn production. With this star system Bob Elwyn has the Woodstock Theatre going places.

From the little experience we have had with this kiddies' benefit show, we can take off our hat to Bob Elwyn, or any other stage director who can come through the grind of horrible rehearsals with optimism. We have just been coaching "Humpty Dumpty" and unless something happens to the cue, we hope he falls off the wall and gets bumped plenty. Young Randolph went "arty" on us and demanded to know how high the wall at the Country Club would be. As property man we can only say: No matter how high the wall is, even Humpty Dumpty ought to be willing to take a fall for the Red Cross.

Clemence Randolph has had so much experience coaching the youngsters from her former Woodstock Children's Theatre the whole affair is moving smoothly, but we are concerned about our job as property man.

Gale Feeley has written a war skit that should be a wow. Her father, Jack Feeley is a hero of the World War and has loaned a lot of gas masks and helmets for the children's show. Yesterday at rehearsal young "Corny" Sewell died nine or 10 times on Flanders Field. For one young son was a ghost raised from the grave over and over again. It is our business to fit Corny into a soldier suit, and Sandra Roome requisitions a Red Cross outfit. Clemmy says it doesn't matter much what the uniform looks like because Sandra is supposed to be a Red Cross nurse after the battle. "Practically brown to the pieces." With the aid of few firecrackers we may make up Sandra to look like a bombed beauty. Sandra has not missed a rehearsal and is a good little trouper.

Others in the show today at the Woodstock Country Club are: Flo De Ruyter, Josephine Chaplin, Kiki Randolph (solo), Velma Cashdollar (piano), Darnette Loomis, Nancy Cooper, (with her accordion), John Goetz and her sister, Faith, Eva Korst (niece of Elizabeth Heermann), and Forrest Schumacher (the gay ghost). Also Carol Feldshuh. Tisianne Sewell (just returned from Saratoga Springs, where she attended St. Faith's Boarding School for Girls), will do the "Humpty Dumpty" number with young Don Randolph. Dicky Lapp will sing. They say his voice is like an angel. Also featured will be the Woodstock Drum and Bugle Corps. Frieda Loomis with the gorgeous Titian hair is drum major. Direction Joseph Friedberg.

There will be no admission for the show, but the Red Cross box will be passed for contributions. Alexis Kosloff will offer Eleanor Snyder and Serkin — star pupils of the Kosloff Ballet in The Maverick. Clara Chichester will accompany some of the dances on the piano. Clara has definitely been the backbone of most of the Red Cross benefits and deserves a bouquet for all her fine support.

Florence O'Dell from "The Brass Rail," will play for some of the young prima donnas. Also Irving Troutman, that dusky boy from The Irvington who has just come up to tickle the ivories in the manner of a Harlem swinger. Thanks, Bill Dixon, for letting us have Irving!

All in all, the show sounds like a big ballyhoo.

Mrs. Harvey I. Todd, who directs the Red Cross activities in Woodstock, will preside at the radio program and also at the club.

The Woodstock quota has been more than doubled, and possibly by this time tripled. Much credit goes to Mrs. Todd and her calm, quiet manner of administering the business. Mrs. Todd announces: Fourth of July at the Woodstock Reformed Church, of which the Rev. Harvey I. Todd is minister, there will be a cafeteria spread and food sale beginning at 10 a. m. served on the green under awnings.

There will be heaps of delicious doughnuts, cakes, and all the tempting home-cooked food for which the Woodstock ladies are famous.

There will also be fancy articles for sale. So, if you need a new apron or bib and tucker, better not miss the Fourth of July luncheon for the benefit of the Woodstock Reformed Church.

Today at 1 p. m. the Red Cross workshop next to the Woodstock town hall opened and hereafter each Tuesday and Wednesday from 1 to 5 p. m. the volunteers who have the urge to sew or knit for the Red Cross will be directed by Mrs. Charles Rosen, Mrs. Cushman Parker and Mrs. Phillip Buttrick. The room is heaped now with work to be done on baby clothes and boys' shirts. The wool has been supplied from headquarters of the Red Cross. This is one place you can come and do your bit, so spare some time for these humble parties and whether you live in Woodstock or nearby, please feel that you are welcome to join in the work.

Miss Elsa Kimball of Ploehman Lane offered her home last Wednesday afternoon for a recital for the benefit of the Red Cross. Pupils of the Vladimir Padwa group gave a very fine program, and pupils of the Woodstock School's Rhythm Band were applauded heartily. The school band is under the direction of Mrs. Stanley Quick, who has also done so much to help the children advance in their art work.

The Red Cross posters made by the children, all pupils at one time of the Woodstock school, are a credit to the community. These posters will be auctioned off and the club following the show and a prize has been contributed by Eleanor Rixon Cannon.

One of the most recent, and most difficult, phases of training carrier pigeons for war service is teaching the birds to fly at night. Like most birds, a homing pigeon goes to sleep at night. At present, some Army birds can successfully negotiate up to 50 miles a night, which is way below their daytime cruising range.

A Paris legend of 150 years standing was shattered by wreckers who raised the canal-boat "Temarque," sunk in the Seine in the French Revolution. They expected to recover some of the treasure of Marie Antoinette. Actually, not one gold coin was found.

Liberty is the blood stream of America. It is what makes this country young, virile, progressive. It builds in people initiative, ingenuity, resourcefulness. Retaining Liberty is worth the effort of all of us.

67 Children Now At Day Nursery, Capt. Lovejoy Says

A total of 67 children are now maintained by the Volunteers of America at the home on Barmann avenue, it was revealed today by Captain Lovejoy, in charge of the home.

These kiddies are brought to the home early in the morning, fed and cared for during the day, and returned at night when the parents of the children return from work. While at the home the children are under the supervision of Captain Lovejoy and four assistants who are in turn aided by girls from the National Youth Administration office.

The home is supported by contributions from citizens in the city. Some of the necessary funds are collected through the medium of a house-to-house canvass accompanied by a musical organization from the home.

College girls on vacation who have had some training in the care of children, can be used for service at the nursery and any who care to volunteer their services are requested to apply at the Volunteers of America home on Barmann avenue.

An inquest into a fire and explosion in London ended after seven months. The jury heard 1,674,000 words of evidence, and as a compensation for their work, were exempted from further duty for life.

ices are requested to apply at the Volunteers of America home on Barmann avenue.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MAKE IT LAST FOREVER!

LIBERTY IS THE blood stream of America. It is what makes this country young, virile, progressive. It builds in people initiative, ingenuity, resourcefulness. Retaining Liberty is worth the effort of all of us.

Steel Companies Expected to Show Better Earnings

Most of the steel companies in the Chicago district are expected to show better earnings for the quarter ended June 30 than in the first quarter of the year, while for the six months to date results will probably exceed any first half since 1937. Business in June was exceptionally good. General factors are expected to show a profit of around $1.30 a share on the common stock for the quarter ended June 30. This compares with $1.06 a share in the same quarter last year, but due to increased costs and taxes falls below the $1.50 a share earned in the first quarter of this year. Estimates, based on reports from 23 roads, place carloadings for the week ended June 29 at around 745,000 cars. This would be a new high for 1940 and would compare with a total of 665,528 cars in the like 1939 week. Plans are being worked out for the first legal test of one of the most important sections of the so-called "death sentence" portion of the Utility Holding Co. Act of 1935. The SEC and the Middle West Corp. are arranging to acquire the question of geographic limitation which the Act imposes upon holding companies. When procedure is worked out the SEC will invite all the major utility holding companies to submit briefs in the Middle West case, making an industry wide test. The stock market drifted more or less aimlessly Tuesday, with volume at 320,000 shares, as many traders put things in shape for a long week-end holiday. The close was irregular, with fractional gains and losses. The Dow-Jones industrial average closed at 120.96, a loss of 16 point for the day; rails gained .09, to close at 25.79 and utilities lost .02 to 22.28. Commonwealth & Southern again headed the list of 15 most active stocks, dropping 1/4 on turnover of 15,800 shares. Electric Boat, third on the list, had a gain of 1/4 and Int. Mer. Marine was 1/2. Domestic copper dropped back to 11 cents a pound in the custom field yesterday. Most commodities showed rallying tendencies in early trading, but declined later and the index lost 0.15 point for the day, the third successive decline. July cotton was off eight points, but other deliveries rose one to three. Wheat turned upward in light trading and closed unchanged to a quarter cent higher at Chicago. Corn was up 1/4. A tight spot situation on grain types of woolen goods is being mentioned and it is stated that civilian clothing for next spring's wear is being sampled, months ahead of schedule. London market continued to show improvement. Buick produced its four millionth passenger car Monday, marking the conclusion of the best six months' production in the company's history, with an average of 27,837 cars a month. Spokesman for the New York Shipbuilding Co. said that the company could operate at capacity schedule for the next 11 years on orders now on hand. Navy award of 13 additional submarines will necessitate doubling capacity of Electric Boat's plant at Groton.

The summer sun—not rain or wind—causes most leaky roofs. Instant exposure of roofs to the scorching heat of the sun causes shingles to split, crack or warp. Usually a large repair bill is avoided by reroofing before the roof actually starts to leak. To guard against the effect of summer sun, asphalt shingles are coated with sun-resistant tempered asphalt and imbedded with a protective layer of mineral granules.

Churches to Join In Religious Drama

The organization meeting for a fall co-operative religious drama was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard A. Lewis on West Chestnut street, Monday night. The movement was initiated by Mrs. Lewis in cooperation with a committee from the Kingston Ministerial Association headed by the Rev. Russell Gaenzle. Several previous meetings have been held.

The religious drama to be presented is a series of medieval "mystery" dramas in which the petitions of the Lord's Prayer will be dramatically portrayed in a series of seven scenes. This type of portrayal was popular in the 15th century, and it is felt that it will have particular significance at this time.

The drama and music are written by Miss Phoebe Guthrie, president of the Religious Drama Council of the Greater New York Federation of Church, who will be here the first week in September to personally direct the various groups.

Each scene in the series of seven will be taken by one of the churches in the city who are able to carry on such dramatic work. Those churches participating will be announced in the near future. The Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. are also lending their support to the effort.

The tentative date is the first Sunday in October with performances at 3:30 and 8:30 o'clock. The production requires a cast of 60 players, in the attire of the Biblical period represented. The dramas were presented with marked success on April 28, at the Church of the Incarnation, New York city.

Those present at the meeting Monday night were: Miss Esther A. Russell, Miss L. May Quimby, Miss Anna D. Quimby and the Rev. Fred H. Deming, representing Trinity Methodist Church; Miss Jean Estey, Miss Carolyn Mullin and Mrs. A. Noble Graham, representing the Y. W. C. A.; the Rev. and Mrs. William McVey and Miss Wilma McVey representing the First Presbyterian Church; the Rev. and Mrs. Russell Gaenzle, representing the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer; and the Rev. What Pranks It Plays—The Wily 'Magic' Cork!

A Trick To Baffle Your Crowd

Gracious, what's going on? A hilarious trick called "The Windy Cork," which you can pull on your friends at the next get-together.

People love to be fooled—in a nice way—and you can make a big hit with a repertoire of mysterious tricks. How baffling to your friends your magic seems—but how easy to you, who know the catch!

To perform the "Windy Cork" trick, you take a large-necked bottle and a cork that will slide easily through the neck. Then you lay the corked bottle horizontally on a table and challenge your audience to blow the cork into the bottle.

They'll huff and they'll puff—but the cork always blows out rather than in! Finally you try and the cork sails merrily in, because . . . Well, maybe you see why!

Impress your audience, too, by making eggs fly through the air, an unlighted cigarette spout smoke. It's all grand fun.

The instructions for doing these and other magic stunts are given in our 32-page booklet. Tells how to work wondrous feats with such simple paraphernalia as coins, cards, matches and glass tumblers. Has mind reading tricks, too.

Send 10¢ in coin for your copy of PROFESSIONAL TRICKS FOR AMATEUR MAGICIANS to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Strawberries Liked For Four Centuries

Ithaca, N. Y., July 3.—As far back as 1592, strawberries were regarded as "delicacies of the garden and delights of the palate." Today, the strawberry is the most important small fruit grown in New York state; its total production exceeds that of any other small fruit, and every county in the state shares in the 3,500 acres devoted to it annually. Even with the low prices of 1933, the farm value of the crop was about one-half million dollars.

The New York state college of home economics calls the strawberry "one of our choicest and most popular fruits. It is at the same time a useful and wholesome food, and deserves a wider use in the family diet."

"Its uses are almost inexhaustible. Shortcake is no doubt the favorite, but deep strawberry pie as well as cobbler, muffins, and salads are becoming equally popular. The canned or preserved berry also lends itself to desserts, sauces, and drinks."

The following recipes are suggested by the college:

Strawberry Shortcake

1 1/2 cups of flour
1/4 teaspoon of salt
1/3 cup of melted shortening
2 tablespoons of sugar
3 teaspoons of baking powder
1 egg
2/3 cup of milk
6 cups of berries
2/3 cup of sugar

Sift the dry ingredients together and stir in the milk, well-beaten egg, and melted shortening. Mix them lightly, place the mixture in a round, greased pan and bake it for 15 minutes at 450 degrees Fahrenheit. Remove it from the oven, cool it slightly, split and fill it with crushed sweetened berries.

Strawberry Egg-Nog

1 egg
1/4 cup of milk
1/4 cup of strawberry juice
Beat the egg thoroughly. Add the fruit juice and milk, using part cream if desired. Serve the egg-nog cold.

Strawberry Tarts

3 cups of strawberries
1 tablespoon of cornstarch
1/2 cup of granulated sugar
1/4 teaspoon of salt
1/2 cup of powdered sugar
1 cup of water
1/2 cup of whipping cream

Pastry.
Mix the sugar, cornstarch, and salt. Add water and cool the mixture until it is thick, stirring it constantly. Cook it for ten minutes. Bake tart shells by cutting rounds of pastry and baking them on inverted muffin pans. Prick them well with a fork and bake them in a hot oven. Place a little of the filling in the bottom of each tart shell, then add strawberries mixed with powdered sugar, and a little more filling. When cold, cover it with sweetened whipped cream.

Strawberry Ice Cream

1 quart of crushed strawberries
2 teaspoons of vanilla
2 cups of sugar
1 quart of cream
Wash and hull the berries, crush them, and add one cup of sugar. Let them stand 20 minutes. Mix the cream, the other cup of sugar, and the vanilla. Combine the ingredients and freeze them.

Quoted Bible for Scheme

But Postal Laws Got Them

"Truth shall spring out of the earth; and righteousness shall look down from heaven. Yes, the Lord shall give that which is good; and our land shall yield her increase." —Psalms 85:11-12.

So wrote a little group of men, whose headquarters are in Chicago, on some of their reams of circulars when they were spreading the gospel of Plenocracy in 1938. It was one of the many ways of "explaining" how money sent to them would return 30 per cent annually.

Since then their troubles included a state court proceeding, after which they changed the name of their organization. Then came a federal injunction that resulted in a jail sentence for one of their officers. The latest episode occurred when a federal grand jury indicted six of their leaders on charges of defrauding hundreds of persons throughout the country of several hundred thousand dollars.

"Never before," explained the Plenocrats, to the reader who persevered, "has a plan become available to the people that operates in accordance with the rules and regulations as set forth in the Bible."

"The 30 per cent natural increase annually in Plenocracy should not be confused with 30 per cent interest on money," it was explained, "because the 30 per cent natural increase in Plenocracy is a genuine increase and the 6 per cent, 10 per cent, 20 per cent or 30 per cent on money would be an artificial and fictitious increase."

How were the Plenocrats to make money?

The general idea was that they would operate a large number of farms in all sections of the country. Risk of loss would be eliminated because of the geographic and climatic diversification of the lands that were to be operated by experts using "scientific methods that would not fail to yield 30 per cent yearly. The government charged, however, that the few farms controlled were mostly in this area, that they were operated by managers, tenants or former unsuccessful owners and showed a loss instead of the promised gains.

Good Taste Today

WHAT SHOULD THE MAID SAY WHEN THE TELEPHONE RINGS.

Author of "Etiquette," the "Book of Social Usage," etc.

In addition to the fact that following question is amusing, put, my reason for printing it is that it is one of those perennial queries which appear every often in my mail. Today's letter tells me: "We've had an argument in our house about how a maid should answer the telephone. That is, should she say 'This is Brown's house' or 'Mrs. Brown's house'?" The maid thinks she should say 'Mrs. Brown's house' but my brother thinks this may be a father sound heaped.

Some time ago when another reader asked me what she should do about having her maid's husband object to paying bills and having the impression given that he was just in there, I answered that this was one of the reasons why some social usage prefers "Hello" other words, I merely quoted a rule: House answer, "Hello, office answer, "B. Brown & Co. pany." And that if one must announce the house, the proper description is "Mrs. Brown's house."

But since the answer, I have thought of several good reasons why "Mrs. Brown's house" is a logical thing for the maid to say. First of all, people who call on a father personally, as well as a business, call him at his office and it may be taken for granted that calls to the house are of a social nature or in some way concerned with the running of the house—in short, they are messages for your mother. In a house telephone therefore, may be considered as belonging to a special department. But no matter whether your maid answers "Mr. (or Mrs.) Brown's house" (I'm glad you did not say "me" once) I still think this is a saving form of speech unnecessary for a private house.

Another letter has told me her maid who says "Hello," some of her friends, is answered "Hello darling," followed by long, intimate account which always stopped until they were out of breath. My answer to was that: "All rules should be adapted to one's personal requirements."

Yorks Still Makes His Baskets

Indians Taught His Grandmother Naomi B. La Forge

Yorks Employs Methods of Aborigines. Uses Black Ash Bark in Pliable State

Ellenville, July 3—Delbert H. Yorks, 74-year-old Ellenville basketmaker, is carrying on the work which he learned from his maternal grandmother who—in fantastic reality more colorful than fiction—had gained her knowledge of the art from the Indians more than a century ago.

Son of the late George H. and Sarah E. LaForge Yorks, Mr. Yorks smiled yesterday as he reminisced of years long past when he was an eager lad watching his grandmother, Naomi Baker LaForge, deftly weave baskets from silken black ash.

Same Old Way
"I still go about it the same way," said Mr. Yorks. "Go out in the woods and cut a piece of ash six or seven inches girth. Then I bark it, cut it in long strips and then slice strips into thinner 'splints'."

The only tool Yorks uses in the actual weaving is an ordinary jack-knife. The knife is held flat against the thigh and strips are "run out" by pulling them past the blade. This is done to shave the wood to desired thinness.

The black ash is used immediately after cutting because it is pliable in this state. That which has stood for some time must be soaked before used in weaving.

Besides weaving and caning of chairs, Yorks learned many secrets of Indian medicine lore from his grandmother and says he can "cook up an herb tonic that will kill chills and fever every time."

After weaving a batch of baskets of various sizes and shapes, he makes house-to-house calls throughout the village to sell his well-made products.

Barbers to Close
All barbers in the city will remain open until 9 o'clock this evening as tomorrow is a holiday. No shops will be open Thursday, July 4.
